

Students of the Month

Self-Control/Perseverance

February 2018

February 2018

Nate is usually the first to be ready to learn. Very respectfully sits on the carpet and listens to directions. When given a task he's very meticulous and his work and does his best to stay focused even when distracted by others. When given a hard task he does his best to persevere

Mrs. Koester

February 2018

Lincoln is an excellent example of self-control and perseverance. He comes to school ready to learn. He shows others what it looks like to be a "five" at all times. One of the most inspiring things about him, is that he welcomes a challenge, especially in math!

Mrs. Worley

February 2018

Luci shows self-control on a consistent basis. She stands quietly and respectfully every morning at Assembly. She follows directions and shows self-control during all daily activities. Recently Luci was working on a Social Studies project in a small group with 2 other students. Both of those students were absent and Luci was tasked with finishing the group poster alone. I was extremely impressed that she accepted the challenge and worked extremely hard, persevered and completed the poster. Luci is a role model to her peers.

Mrs. Ryan

February 2018

Maya is always willing to give her best, even when she makes mistakes. She also has an amazing ability to be tolerant of others behavior that can be pretty annoying.

Mr. Rosso

February 2018

Sheri has shown amazing perseverance this year in our classroom. Even if something is confusing, she asks questions and continues to try until she successfully completes the assignment.

Mrs. Ruley

February 2018

Klaire is constantly making the right choices, even when others are not. She is always willing to do what is right not just what is easy. I look forward to seeing how this young lady will positively influence her peers as she moves on to High School.

Mrs. Sloan

February 2018

Clara is consistently following class rules and directions. She is a kind and fun friend to her classmates but knows when to be chatting with friends and when it is a learning time. Clara has a great attitude about learning new things and doing her personal best. If her work needs to be fixed she does so agreeably with a positive attitude. Her perseverance combined with a great attitude has led to her making some of the biggest academic strides in the classroom!

Ms. A

February 2018

Jake is an exemplary example for others in using self-control both in the classroom as well as out on the playground. He works hard to follow directions the first time given, he is attentive and does not allow distractions to affect his learning. Jake also perseveres when he is challenged with new concepts in class. Jake shows self-control with his ability to praise others when they have made accomplishments both during class as well as during P.E. Each day, he strives to continue making growth in his learning and I am so thankful to have him setting examples for others.

Ms. Cervantes

February 2018

Lennon is a true example of self-control and perseverance. Since the very first day I met him Lennon has taken on every task given to him with all he has and always works to be the best he can be. Lennon doesn't give up when things get tough. Just as important, he sets an example for others with his unwavering self-control. He focuses on his goals, understands and respectfully follows behavioral expectations, and because of this, makes everyone around him feel safe and comfortable.

Mrs. Arnone